About Paul Young

Born in Grande Prairie, Alberta and currently settled in the USA's Pacific Northwest, Paul Young is a renowned New York Times bestselling author—writer of The Shack, Cross Roads and Eve.

A life unlike any other, Paul's early years were spent with the Dani, a stone-age tribe who welcomed him into the fold like family. His journey then continued with many twists and turns of fate that eventually led him to the big screen, when his book, The Shack, was turned into a major motion picture.

Today, Paul shares the insights he's gathered from great losses and great adventures all around the world. While his story begins with the challenges of adjusting to different cultures, of dreams obliterated, of the traumas of sexual abuse that began as a five year old boy, of a life overcome with shame and of desperate grasping for wholeness, it does not end there. It rises to reflect a road of reconciliation, the surprises of grace and community, the potency of love, the power of transformational healing and the unexpected emergence of joy.

At this year's Little Warrior's luncheon, Paul will take audiences on a journey of curiosity and self-discovery. He will craft an inspiring space for community and connection and divulge how he came to an important personal revelation: there's nothing to lose by living a life of faith and trust.

The Culinary Offering

Accomplished chefs will prepare your delectable three-course luncheon presentation, including appetizer, entrée and dessert.

A Powerful Experience

Over the years, we've enjoyed nine unique, inspirational and transformational events together. For our tenth luncheon, we're proud to welcome a keynote speaker unlike any before. Paul Young will share his remarkable experiences and the incredible journey that led him to become a New York Times bestselling author. Together, we'll go on an insightful adventure of reflection and grace. We'll explore deeper levels of connection, of community and of hope. And we'll do it to support survivors of child sexual abuse.

Our Heartfelt Cause

We'll share information and updates on the Little Warriors Be Brave Ranch. You'll hear how we are working to help survivors of child sexual abuse grow into healthy adults.
